- 1.3. Cognizant of Articles 16A and 23 of the SADC Treaty which commits SADC member states to engage fully with the peoples of the region and civil society in regional integration and development;
- 1.4. Aspiring for a SADC in which all are equal in all spheres and can reach their full potential in both their public and private lives;
- 1.5. Alarmed at the lack of progress in achieving human and social development, the growing levels of unemployment, poverty and inequalities, the increasing impact of climate change, land & environmental issues, the continued plundering of natural and national resources linked to corruption and poor economic governance, the bleeding of our economies through the illicit flows of financial resources, the trampling of human rights and of vulnerable communities, the on-going lack of democratic participation by citizens and people in national and regional processes, the crisis in healthcare, continued harassment of journalists, the absence of access to information and encroachments on the right to freedom of expression, and the absence of human security within Southern Africa;
- 1.6. Concerned with the increased social exclusion, marginalization, discrimination and violence based on gender, race, nationality, sexual orientation, particularly targeted at women, young girls, children, the elderly and persons with disability and the need to address the context and conditions of vulnerabilities which affect these communities and individuals

Recognising:

- 1.7. That development needs of people, communities and constituencies are multiple, complex and interwoven;

- 1.8. That a new discourse, approach and strategy are required to address the multiplicity of deprivations, the multiplicity of contexts and multiple development deficit which prevent, inhibit or reinforce barriers to genuine, sustainable well-being of humans, the environment and all who inhabit the planet is urgently required;
- 1.9. That SADC is not an isolated region from the African continent or the world and that only our collective efforts to revitalise the global South as people-based movements championing the rights of people to fulfil their full potential can achieve a lasting environment of global justice. As such we acknowledge the on-going solidarity efforts and struggle in SADC and beyond undertaken by all of us and recognise the need to strengthen these efforts;
